THE MALONE INQUEST.

No Evidence of Foul Play Discovers Upon the Body Found in the Race.

It is that of Patrick Malone and He Died from Drowning.

Most of the day was taken up in Justice Scanlan's court, developing the fact that Patrick Malone was last seen on Monday evening, December 31.

It has been claimed from the first by Malone's relatives, that he had met with foul play. Last January a clairvoyant went into a trance, after the payment of the usual fee, and saw the missing man's body in a neighbors cistern chopped up into small pieces. It was revealed to her that he had been killed for money.

After hearing all this, a search warrant was sworn out, and Marshal Hogan was called to see that the house of the neighbor was thoroughly inspected.

When the body was found in the race there was again talk of foul play, but nothing in the inquest to-day went to show that such was the case.

The first witness sworn was the brother of the dead man, Bartholomew Malone, formerly proprietor of a saloon on South Main street. Bartholomew Malone swore that on the night of December 31, his brother came to his house in company with Andrew Gilligan, witness' father-in-law. Had a conversation with him at that time. He was cursing the men that took his money and his horse. He refused to go to bed and after about five minutes he left. He came back a moment later but still refused to go to bed, being much excited about the loss of his horse. That was the last witness saw of him alive. At that time he had been drinking some but did not stagger. He was thirty years of age and unmarried. Witness did not hear that Joe Heald had taken charge of the horse and buggy until the next day. Suspected foul play as soon as this was known, not thinking that his brother would stay so long away from his home especially when drinking. The ring on the finger of the dead man was one presented by a friend on the Sunday night before the disappearance. On the Monday night he also had with him a silver watch and chain.

Officer McGinley testified that he saw Malone last on Monday night, December 31, near Anderson's barber shop. About half-past two witness heard three cries for help that seemed to come from the west side of the river, somewhere near the upper end of the race. Thought at first that it was a fire. The last call was not so loud as the others. Witness thought it "looked like the same boiler each time."

William H. Corraan testified that Malone came to his house Monday night, and wanted a bed, but was told that the house was full. Called for drinks, and said he had no money, but would pay for them the next time he came in.

Dr. Henry Palmer was examined as to the condition of the body. The body was that of a person apparently about thirty-eight years of age, weighing one hundred and forty pounds. It was dressed in a dark gray overcoat, purple frock coat, vest and pants, a light shirt, dotted with red and blue triangular spots, cotton undershirt and drawers, a light purple necktie, and congress gaiter shoes. The body had been under water for some time, and decomposition was well advanced. No evidence of injury could be determined from the examination. Contusions or injuries of a singular nature could not be detected on account of decomposition; but there were no cuts or wounds. The most definite indication that death resulted from drowning was that gravel was still clutched in the right hand, it being evident that there had been muscular action while in the water. Nothing positive as to the cause of death could be told on account of the condition of the body. Everything went to show that the body had been in the water several months, the hair and moustache readily rubbing off when touched by the hand.

At the close of Dr. Palmer's testimony a recess of five minutes was taken for purposes of rest and refreshment.

After the intermission Dr. D. Robinson was put on the stand and corroborated the testimony of Dr. Palmer except on one or two minor points.

Miss Anna Malone was the next witness and is still on the stand at the hour of going to press.

"What you, you coming yet my friend?" Of course my gold is no better. Well, don't stand on the order of going, but go to the drugists and get a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, quick. He went, and he was staghtway made happy.

For birds, scolds and other wounds Salvation Oil has proved itself to be the best remedy ever used. All the drugists sell it for 25 cents a bottle.

TALKED RIGHT OUT IN MEETINGS AND WILL SPEND FIVE DAYS WITH THE SHERIFF IN CONSEQUENCE.

Alouzo Loomis felt moved to add his part to the Salvation Army exercises on Wednesday evening.

"Whoop!" he remarked, "get on to the fit of that maiden's bunnet up there on the front seat."

Divers and sundry other ribald remarks did Alouzo make. He even winked and said "Rats!" when threatened with expulsion. Altogether he made himself much disliked. In consequence Marshal Hogan was authorized to place him under arrest, and this morning the pensive Alouzo appeared before Judge Patterson.

"You will," said the court briefly, after hearing the defendant's plea of guilty, "You will spend five days in the county jail."

A Great Surprise. Is in store for all who use Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs, the great guaranteed remedy. Would you believe that it is sold on its merits and that any druggist is authorized by the proprietor of this wonderful remedy to give you a sample bottle free? It never fails to cure croup or bronchitis. All druggists sell Kemp's Balsam. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.

Two galling horses pounded Shurtleff & Hantrons' cream wagon up Main street this afternoon with the wheels where the box of the wagon should have been. The team started from the barn while being unharnessed and made for the street with a rush. The wagon was overturned in rounding a corner and thumped along, bottom side up, until in front of Thoroughgood's box factory where team and wagon parted company. Except to the wagon there was no damage done.
